Just saw that similar projects have caused “significant damage to Miami’s coral reefs resulting from the dredging” at PortMiami from 2013 to 2015. The study, led by biologist Dr. Ross Cunning of Chicago’s Shedd Aquarium, found that “large amounts of dredging sediment buried 50-90 percent of nearby reefs, resulting in widespread coral death.”

I'm really hoping this project does not go through given the environmental damage that can result from projects like this at Port Everglades.

Thank you for your time,
